

MARIE Watt's SEWING CIRCLE

Sit FOR A SPELL, AND STITCH

Join us at the Brigham Young University Museum of Art in creating a work of art with artist Marie Watt!

Oregon-based artist Marie Watt is designing a blanket tower for the BYU Museum of Art's upcoming exhibition Shaping America. While in Utah for the installation, Marie will host a sewing circle with members of our community. She will teach a stitch and lead the group in discussions about blanket memories and other topics. Don't miss this opportunity: How often do you get to sit with an artist, pick her brain and help her craft a new work?

When: Thursday, March 14
Time: 9:30 AM – 12:00 PM
Location: BYU Museum of Art,
Lied Gallery
Admission: Free!

"What continually draws me to the Sewing Circle is the quality of conversation and storytelling that occurs when eyes are diverted and hands are busy at work." ~ Marie Watt

Participants will receive a small silkscreen print in exchange for their stitches!

- No sewing experience necessary
- Come and go when you wish
- All ages welcome
- Bring friends!